CLASS NEWS

H. F. Atkins has written to the secretary of the Law School that after the Great War, he went to South Africa and Australia, taking up some of the work of the British Empire schoolmasters, who went into the army and as "there seem to be enough qualified teachers now, I have returned to the States, and after a year's work in Education at Leland Stanford University," he is teaching in Berkeley, Calif.

W. Atkinson's step-granddaughter, Edna Irene Field, was married to David Henry Leavitt, February, 1927.

I. Babbitt has been elected Correspondant de l'Institute (Academie des Sciences Morales et Politiques).

A. G. Barret's daughter, Ellen Robinson, was married December 2, 1926, to Thomas J. Wood (Princeton '20, Harvard Law School '23).

P. Bartholow, after several years in Europe, is now living in Rockville Center, Long Island, N. Y.

C. C. Batchelder has just returned from a five months' cruise to Panama, Samoa, Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, Papua, Java, Singapore, Ceylon, Zanzibar, Kenya, South Africa, Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, and Martinique.

A. C. Bent's great work on the life history of North American birds still continues. A long article on Bent appeared recently in the Washington Post, from which the Class Secretary takes the following:

"The life histories of North American marsh birds—flamingo, heron, crane, coot and a score of others—have been compiled in a volume just published by the Smithsonian Institution as Bulletin 135 of the National Museum. The volume is number six in a series designed to include all the birds of North America, which constitutes the most comprehensive study of birds yet attempted for this or any other continent. The series is the work of Arthur Cleveland Bent, of Taunton, Mass.; when completed it will contain twenty or more volumes.

"These volumes are scientific books, but they are by no means books solely for scientists. The complexities of bird social organization, the tragedies and comedies of feathered existence, above all the physical beauty of birds themselves seem capable of stirring the emotions of ornithologists as profoundly as the human species stir novelists. And frequently the ornithologist proves the better literary artist.

"The range of vital statistics which Mr. Bent covers in his description of each species includes spring migration, courtship, nesting habits, eggs, young, sequence of plumage to maturity, seasonal molts, feeding habits, flight, swimming and diving habits, vocal powers, behavior, enemies, fall migration and winter habits.

"The author of the series of which this absorbing volume forms a part is not a professional ornithologist in the sense that he lives by his science. He has business interests in Massachusetts to which he devotes two days a week, spending the rest of his time on the study of birds.

"The plan for this monumental series of life histories of all North American birds was first suggested to Mr. Bent in 1910 by the work on the same lines begun by Maj. Charles Bendire, the first and second volumes of which were published by the Smithsonian Institution in 1892 and 1895. Major Bendire did not live to complete the work, however, and it lapsed after his death. In 1910, Mr. Bent conceived the plan of carrying it on, following Major Bendire's lead of giving special attention to breeding habits and eggs. But he soon found it advisable to extend the scope considerably, and the exhaustive present series is the result.

"The publishing costs of such a work are, of course, too great for a private purse. Its importance to science was such, however, that the Smithsonian Institution undertook to publish the volumes in the National Museum bulletin series.

"Mr. Bent has the manuscript for the volume on shore birds already well advanced, but to cover the remainder of the field will require fourteen or fifteen volumes more. The poverty of the Smithsonian and its branches makes it impossible to print more than one volume a year, so that there is some doubt as to whether Mr. Bent will be able to complete the work in his lifetime. The work is a typical example of the self-sacrificing devotion to science of an enthusiast. Mr. Bent receives no reward for his work and even pays aids out of his own pockets to classify certain types of material. For the sake of ornithology and of all lovers of birds it is hoped that circumstances will permit him to complete his monumental task."

W. B. Bentley has a granddaughter, Millicent Ann Bentley, born February 18, 1927, at Westford, N. Y.

W. R. Bigelow's son, William Francis, was married to Mary Tilton Loker, September 4, 1926.

F. M. Brown has been transferred in War Department service from Honolulu to Washington, D. C.

C. A. Bunker's son, Raymond T. (Harvard '24) is assistant in the Harvard Engineering School; his son, Laurence E. (Harvard '26) holds the Fiske Scholarship at Trinity College, Cambridge, England, for 1926-7, 1927-8.

G. P. Butters spent last winter in Southern France.

R. C. Cabot has published "Adventures on the Borderland of Ethics" (Harper's), and has edited "The Goal of Social Work" (Houghton, Mifflin Co.). He delivered an address November 7, 1926, on "The Need of Religion" at Phillips Brooks House, published in Harvard Alumni Bulletin.

H. K. Caner's son, G. Colket, has a daughter, born February 6, 1927.

C. L. Case's son, Charles Douglas, is with the McCall Publishing Co., New York; his daughter, Kathleen (Smith '26) is a music instructor in the West Junior High School, Arlington, Mass.

G. D. Chase received an honorary degree of LL. D. from the University of Maine, June 13, 1927.

C. Copeland's wife, Louisa Du Pont, died August 10, 1926.

Charles Downer died June 17, 1926, at the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md. He was born at Sharon, Vt., May 14, 1866, the son of Chester and Frances Elizabeth (Shepard)

Downer. His father was engaged in the real estate business in Boston, Mass. After preparing for college at the Boston Latin School and Charles W. Stone's private school, he entered Harvard with the Class of 1889 in the fall of 1885. After graduation, he attended the Harvard Law School and received the degree of LL. B. After 1892, he lived most of the time in Sharon, Vt., engaged in the care of trust estates. He was very influential in Republican politics in Vermont, serving in the Legislature as Representative, 1898-99, 1904-05, and as Senator, 1902-03. He was also a delegate to the Republican National Convention at Chicago in June, 1904. During the past six years, he spent the winters in Washington, D. C. He was never married. Downer was a man of extreme modesty and retiring habits, but his advice on business and political affairs was constantly sought and highly valued by those who knew his soundness, independence, and common sense and the integrity of his character. He was generous and public spirited, but in so quiet a fashion that few men knew of his benevolences. During his lifetime, he presented to the State of Vermont, a large tract of land for a State forest; and in his will (a very remarkable document, showing intensive thought for the public interest), he bequeathed to his native town, Sharon, $100,000 in memory of his father, Chester Downer, the income of which was not "to be used at any time for defraying the current and regular expenses of the town, as to do this, I am sure, would tend to weaken the character of the citizenship of the town, but it shall be used in doing things of a public nature which the town would not naturally do, nor could afford to do at its own expense." In addition, he bequeathed to Harvard College $200,000, one-quarter of the income to accumulate until the principal reaches $600,000, and the other three-quarters of the income and the whole income of the $600,000 (when reached), to be used for scholarships, to be awarded first to students of the name of Downer, second to lineal descendants of the members of the Class of 1889, third to students who are residents of Vermont, fourth to descendants of Harvard graduates of Anglo-Saxon stock, and any balance of income for graduate fellowships.

Charles Bates Dunlap died June 6, 1926, at New York, N. Y. He was born at Cambridge, Mass., August 24, 1863, son of Charles Henry and Martha Smart (Bates) Dunlap. His father was a farmer, residing at Indian Creek, W. Va. He prepared for college at the Cambridge High School. After graduation, he received the degrees of M. D. and A. M. at the Harvard Medical School. In 1896-97, he was second assistant resident physician at Long Island Hospital, Boston; in 1897-98, second executive assistant at Boston City Hospital; in 1898-1902, he was pathological assistant at McLean Hospital, Waverley, Mass., and Worcester Insane Hospital. From 1902, he was the Chief Neuro Pathologist at the New York State Pathological Institute at Ward's Island, New York, and Professor of Neureopathology at University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, as well as a practicing physician in his specialty. He was the author of a long list of articles and addresses on pathological anatomy in connection with mental diseases, paralysis, cerebral syphilis, brain lesions, etc., and was a widely recognized and eminent authority on the histology of the brain in relation to nervous diseases. In 1918, he published "Preliminary Suggestions for a Study of the Pathological Anatomy of Dementia Praecox." He was married at Cambridge, Mass., September 23, 1902, to Anna Weld Carret, and had three children—Martha Weld, born September 8, 1904; Ruth Weld, born July 2, 1906, and Charles Edward, born June 8, 1908.

G. L. De Blois' daughter, Elizabeth, is in the Tufts College Medical School.

S. R. Dunham is a teacher at the Pond School, in Cambridge. His son, Francis, was married to Miss Hope Arnold, at Pawtucket, R. I.

J. Endicott is traveling in Europe.

H. D. Everett is head of the Everett Printing Service in Boston. His son, Horace D. Jr., after winning the Boston Harvard Club prize book for standing highest in scholarship and character in the junior class of the Arlington High School last year, has graduated this year from Phillips Exeter with high honors and with a fine athletic record.

F. W. Faxon has published "Annual Magazine Subject—Index, 1925, including as Part II, the Dramatic Index 1925."

N. R. George, Jr., has resigned as President of the Trimount Press, Inc., which position he has held for ten years.

M. L. Gerstle's son, Dr. Mark L. Gerstle, has a daughter, Cynthia; his daughter, Louise Alice Gerstle, married Lionel Stahl, and has a daughter, Marie Louise.

W. F. Giese has published "Victor Hugo, the Man and the Poet" (Dial Press, pp. 315).

A. Goadby is Chairman of the New York Section of the American Society for Psychical Research.

F. Green is one of the advisers to the Reporter on the subject of "Agency" for the American Law Institute.

W. C. Green is now an assistant in the John G. White Division of the Cleveland Public Library, Cleveland, Ohio. His former position with the Meadville Theological School was abolished when that school moved to Chicago. Green was made Librarian Emeritus, with a pension.

C. Greene is in Europe.

V. M. Harding spent a year in Europe 1925-26. His son, Victor M. Jr., graduated this year from Phillips Exeter with high honors.

J. R. Hayes has been appointed Librarian of Friends Historical Library of Swarthmore College, a special library and museum of Quakeriana. His daughter, Katharine Russell (Radcliffe '23) was married to Dana Bennett Durand (Harvard '25), September 8, 1926.

A. Holmes is Deputy Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation for Massachusetts. His daughter, Dorothy Hathaway, has a son Isaac Hathaway, Jr., born in 1925.

M. D. Hull's son, Morton Denison, Jr., has a son, Morton D., 2d, born March 9, 1927.

E. L. Jellinek spent the winter in Egypt, Sicily, Italy and France.

W. L. Jennings in the summers of 1926 and 1927 is a member of the Round Table on Chemistry at the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass.

H. T. Kellogg was nominated by both Republican and Democratic parties for Associate Justice of the Court of Appeals of the State of New York and was elected in November, 1926, taking his seat January 1, 1927.

M. A. Kilvert, in addition to his other corporation offices, is vice-president and consulting engineer of Woods-Hoskins-Young Co., construction and fiscal agents. He is regional director for Florida of the Harvard Fund Council.

F. B. Lord was made Secretary of Industrial Accident Board of California, in February, 1926. His daughter, Katherine Rogers, has a daughter, Prudence Amanda Rogers.

Walter Warren Magee died at Syracuse, N. Y., May 25, 1927. He was born at Groveland, N. Y., May 23, 1861, son of John and Marietta (Patchin) Magee. He prepared for College at Phillips Exeter. In College, he was interested in debating and Republican politics, a member of the Hasty Pudding and elected as Class Orator for Class Day. After graduation, he practiced law in Syracuse; he was a member of the Board of Supervisors of Onondaga County in 1892-93; and corporation counsel for the City of Syracuse for ten years from 1904. He was elected to Congress from the 35th Congressional District of New York, as a Republican in 1914 to the 64th Congress, and re-elected in the 65th, 66th, 67th, 68th, 69th and 70th Congresses. Magee served on the Appropriations Committee, and was influential in his committee work, though seldom addressing the House. He took little interest in College or Class affairs; his entire attention apparently being given to political matters.

He was married to Sarah Genevieve Wood at Fort Niobrara, Nebr., on November 19, 1895.

Charles Christopher McGehee died at Atlanta, Ga., November 22, 1926. He was born at Columbus, Ga., October 22, 1870, the son of Christopher Columbus and Josephine (Garrett) McGehee. His father was a banker of Atlanta. McGehee received a degree of Ph. D. in 1887 from the University of Georgia and entered Harvard College in September, 1885—the youngest member of the Class of 1889. After graduation and until September, 1900, he was with the Atlanta Home Insurance Co., as special agent and Assistant Secretary. From 1900 to 1920, he was Manager of the Southern Department of the Home Life Insurance Company of New York, at Atlanta. Retiring in 1920, he devoted his time to the care of his trusts and personal affairs. He was a member of the Life Underwriters Association of Georgia and of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, a trustee of Grady Hospital, a director in the Atlantic Steel Co. of Atlanta, and he took an influential part in the development of his city and community.

He was married to Pattie Green McClung, at Knoxville, Tenn., November 16, 1892, who died September 4, 1897; he later married Vera Estes Hatcher, at Columbus, Ga., October 22, 1903. His children were Gladys, born January 12, 1894; died January 12, 1894; Pattie McClung (married to Reginald Pope, December 28, 1922), and Charles Christopher, Jr. (Harvard '29).

Edgar Ormsby Mitchell died at Newburgh, N. Y., June 25, 1926, from cerebral hemorrhage. Mitchell was born in New York City, October 25, 1864, the son of Dr. John James and Philena Baker (Roose) Mitchell of Newburgh, N. Y. After preparing at Phillips Exeter, he entered with the Class and left at the end of sophomore year. He graduated from the Harvard Medical School, with the degree of M. D. in 1892, and then studied at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City. He practiced medicine in Newburgh until his death, being exceedingly successful in obstetrics and the treatment of children's diseases. He served on the local Board of Health, 1908-1909. He was married to Elsie Babcock Griggs, April 4, 1904, and had two children, John Sheffield, born December 20, 1905, and Elsie Thorne, born May 16, 1909.

W. L. Monro has been chosen to the following additional positions: vice-president of Duquesne Club, director and member of executive committee of Westinghouse Air Brake Co., director of Union Switch and Signal Co. He has published "Window Glass in the Making." His son, William L., Jr., is assistant to the president of the American Window Glass Co., at Pittsburgh; his son, C. Bedell, is teaching English in the University of Pittsburgh.

C. H. Moore has been appointed to the Pope Professorship of Latin.

J. P. Morgan has given to the Neurological Institute as a memorial to his wife, who died August 14, 1925, a fund of $200,000 to provide a complete hospital ward of forty-eight beds for the treatment and investigation of sleeping sickness.

W. Naumburg has provided band concerts for the people of New York City this summer, in memory of his father.

J. M. Newell's son, James M., Jr., is with Jackson & Curtis, investment bankers, Boston.

J. P. Nields made the chief address on "Delaware Day" at the Sesquicentennial in Philadelphia, last fall.

F. L. Olmstead was elected president of The Olmstead Family Association in September, 1926; also warden of All Saints' Memorial Church in Lakewood, N. J.

W. Paul's son, Stanley Brice, has a son, Richard Kinsman, born December 4, 1926.

W. H. Pear, who served in 1926 as Director of the Philadelphia Relief Study, appointed by a Citizens' Committee of Seventy, made a report on the needs as to family relief (which the Class Secretary learns was highly instrumental in obtaining much needed legislation in Pennsylvania, this year).

Gardner Perry died at Walpole, Mass., May 30, 1927. Perry was born at Newark, N. J., February 13, 1867, son of Nehemiah and Emily Stimson (Gardner) Perry. He prepared for College at G. W. C. Noble's private school, in Boston. He was one of the most prominent of the Class athletes, being a member of the Class and University Crews, the Class and University Football Teams, and the Class Tug of War Team. He was a member of the Varsity Club, Shooting Club, Institute and Hasty Pudding. After graduation from College (degree granted out of course in 1890), he traveled for a year in Europe with R. D. C. Ward '89; he then entered the Harvard Law School, graduating with the degree of L. B., in 1893. From 1893 to 1896, he practiced in the patent law office of Lange & Roberts, in Boston. From 1896 to 1914, he practiced law in partnership with the Class Secretary. From 1898 to 1900, he served under appointment by Governor Wolcott, as Trial Justice in Norfolk County, until a District Court was established by the Legislature which supplanted all Trial Justices in the District. He was a director in the Columbia National Life Insurance Company, from its organization. During the War, he served as a member of the District Draft Board and as Representative for District No. 1 for the Shipbuilding Labor Adjustment Board of the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the United States Shipping Board (a detailed account of his work on which is given in the 30th Anniversary Report). In 1919, he gave up practicing law and was associated with A. F. Fithin & Co. investment securities. He resumed his law practice in 1923, and also has been interested in his farm at Walpole, Mass., to which he moved after a long residence in Dedham, Mass.

He was married January 7, 1896, at Boston, to Laura Pell Bangs, and has four sons, Gardner, Jr., born November 18, 1896 (married December 18, 1925, to Carmen Boutinon); George Bangs, born July 19, 1898; Parker Dodd, born June 10, 1903; Richard, born September 10, 1906.

O. Prescott's son, Oliver Prescott, Jr., was married September 23, 1926, to Phebe Ann Richmond, of Providence, R. I.

P. M. Reynolds' son, James R., was married at Baltimore, Md., to Elizabeth S. Atkinson, December 29, 1926.

W. F. Richards is now traveling in Norway and Sweden.

M. W. Richardson has published in Journal of the American Society for Psychical Research, March, 1927, a further article on his investigations on "The Margery Mediumship," and a description of his mechanical inventions for testing the genuineness of the phenomena.

A. C. Robinson's son, Gerald C., has a son, Richard Dudley, born May 20, 1926.

A. C. Saunders' son, Courtis, was married to Mae Chamberlain, at Cambridge, December 4, 1926.

Charles Edwin Schroll died at Memphis, Tenn., September 3, 1926. He was born at Decatur, Ill., October 5, 1863, son of William and Thomasine Eleanor (Burrows) Schroll. Preparing for Harvard at the Decatur High School, he entered with the Class and remained through the freshman year; he then attended the Harvard Law School from 1886 to 1889. He was one of the most prominent athletes of the Class, being a member of the Class Crew, the University Crew and the University Nine. From 1889 to 1911, he practiced law in Decatur, Ill., then removed to Greenwood, Miss., where he devoted most of his time to a cotton plantation. Some time after 1914, he removed to Memphis, Tenn.

He was married September 1, 1891, to Augusta Koerner Westermann at Lincoln, Nebr., and had five children—Emma Eleanor, born June 21, 1892 (married to Walter Trent and having three daughters, Dorothy, Georgia, Louise, and a son, Walter, Jr.); Augusta Westermann, born May 5 1894 (married to Chester Turner, and having a daughter, Marian); William, born July 8, 1897 (married to Gladys Bringham and having a daughter, Pauline); Robert, born September 28, 1899; John Charles, born May 10, 1903.

W. H. Siebert, Research Professor in European and American History at Ohio State University, has been Acting Dean of the College of Arts, Philosophy and Science in the University since January, 1927. By mistake, Siebert's name appears in the list of addresses in the 30th and 35th Anniversary Reports as William H., instead of Wilbur H., for which the Class Secretary duly apologizes.

H. D. Sleeper is Secretary of the MacDowell Club, New York City. His son, William D. (Harvard '25) graduates this year in the honor group at the Harvard School of Business Administration; his daughter, Mary O., is a professor in Mills College in California.

E. W. Storrow has a granddaughter, born December 17, 1926, to Thomas W. and Cornelia (Fiske) Storrow.

G. Strong, as vice-chairman of the Subway Advisory Committee in Chicago, drafted a report (pp. 123) which has been approved officially and may serve as a solution of the subway problem in Chicago.

A. W. Tolman's son, Albert W., Jr., receives degree of M. B. A. '27 in New York University; his son, Edward M., Bowdoin '27.

R. D. C. Ward was Exchange Professor to Colorado, Beloit and Knox Colleges, last spring. He was guest of honor at the dinner of the Rocky Mountain Harvard Club in Denver, Colo., February 26, 1927. His daughter, Anna S. (Mrs. Calvert Magruder) has a son, born May 17, 1927. His son, Robert S., is with R. M. Bradley & Co. in real estate, Boston and Cambridge.

C. Warren's three volume work on "The Supreme Court in United States History," published in 1922, has been issued in a new and revised edition with additional notes, in two volumes (1926). Warren delivered the address at the Midwinter Commencement Exercises of George Washington University, February 22, 1927, in Continental Hall, Washington, D. C., on "John Adams and American Constitutions." He was appointed to deliver the Cutler Lecture at the University of Rochester, N. Y., April 8, 1927, his subject being "The Trumpeters of the Constitution." He is vice-president of the Washington Harvard Club.

W. H. Warren's daughter, Katharine W. Sutherland, has two daughters, Priscilla W., born March 12, 1925, and Rosalie W., born June 12, 1926.

B. C. Weld's daughter, Frances Stephenson, was married to Robert Wales Emmet 3d (Harvard '20), at Boston, Mass., November 5, 1926.

G. M. Weld was injured in an automobile collision in the spring of 1926, and was just recovering when the Class Secretary saw him in Santa Barbara in September, 1926. He was one of the speakers at the "Church Congress" in San Francisco, June 13-17, 1927.

M. Whitridge has been elected a director in the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company of Baltimore.

M. Winkler's son, Alexander Woodward, took his A. B. degree in February, 1927, at the University of Michigan and will enter the Harvard Medical School.

G. E. Wright's daughter, Annah Barelay, was married to Philip Meinhardt Rogers, at Seattle, Wash., June 29, 1926.

'89 GRANDFATHERS

Additions to the roll of '89 grandfathers have been reported since the last annual Bulletin as follows: W. B. Bentley, E. W. Grew, A. Holmes, M. D. Hull, F. B. Lord, W. Paul, E. W. Storrow, R. D. C. Ward, which, when added to the 34 reported in the 35th Anniversary Report, and the 13 reported in the Eleventh Annual Bulletin, makes a total of 55 (as far as reported).

CLASS OF 1889 WAR MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIP

The Class War Memorial Scholarship was awarded for the year 1926-27 to George Michael Healy of the Junior Class. Healy's home is in South Windham, Conn., and he entered without examination from the Windham High School, Willimantic, Conn.

'89 IN THE ASSOCIATED HARVARD CLUBS

The meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs at Memphis, Tenn., April 21-23, 1927, was attended by Burr, Hobart, Kilvert, Moore and C. Warren. Burr, as Chairman of the War Memorial Committee, made, at the business meeting, an eloquent speech which received great applause; Moore, as Dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences, made at least four addresses in Memphis—at the dinner on Graduate Schools Day, at the business meeting, at Southwestern University, and at the public schools; Kilvert was elected by the Associated Harvard Clubs as Vice-President for the Southern Division.
